

This Week on the Sloop

March 31- April 7, 2016

Watch - Splash the Sloop: Finishing a Long Haul

We've released a new video, an update to Float the Boat, which we shared with you last October when we were just beginning our biggest restoration ever.

When we launched Float the Boat we knew we had a long, hard winter ahead of us, but nobody could have prepared us for the challenges we were about to face. We had a lot of money to raise and a big project to complete to ensure that our sloop would be sailing again.

Now we're just 10 weeks and $150,000 away from finishing this project and being back on the Hudson River.

We could never have come this far without you!

This past week has been an exciting one as we finished up framing and moved on to hull planks and interior planks. Work also continues on building and installing the centerboard trunk.

The first of many new planks to be installed on the starboard side.

Patterning a new hull plank aside another almost ready for installation.

A view of the starboard hold with installation of interior planks called bilge stringers well under way.

Follow the restoration live on Instagram!

What's Next?

We will continue planking and building the centerboard trunk. As the sailing season is right around the corner, we will begin rebuilding the interior of Clearwater, more on that to come next week!
