FROM THE HELM

Stormy Seas; Steady as She Goes

Annie Osborn, Clearwater Board President

Our board is back on the quarterdeck. Our membership has responded to the cry "all hands." By dead reckoning, though the water is shallow, our organization remains afloat. By definition, when the draft of a vessel exceeds the depth of the water, she is aground. When expenses exceed revenues, measures must be taken.

The current and past years expenses have included sloop restoration, staff salaries, utilities, and cost of events.

The current and past revenues include membership, donations, grants, and earned income (vessels, events).

Solution to insufficient cash flow: more members, more member organized fundraisers, more development prospecting, new education revenues, new partnerships, new grants.

Goals: refloat our sloop, implement working fiscal controls with transparency, pay down our debts and loans, and restore the festival.

SPIRIT OF THE HUDSON

Thank you to everyone who made Clearwater's first ever gala honoring Annie and Fred Osborn with the Spirit of the Hudson award a huge success! There were over 140 guests, a special performance by Paul Winter including a group howl, the Master of Ceremonies was Jimmy Buff from Radio Woodstock, auctioneer Nicho Lowery from Antiques Road Show, all in the beautiful riverside setting of The Garrison.

The evening brought together environmentalists from all walks of life including former sloop captains, artists, lawyers, doctors, bankers and people from all over the Hudson Valley to help raise $110,000 in gifts and pledges! What a wonderful way to celebrate Clearwater's commitment to the Hudson River. We're looking forward to next year's Gala on November 13th 2016.

Clearwater Marks its 50th Anniversary by Looking Forward

By Captain Betsy Garthwaite and James Malchow

With the rebirth that the recent restoration project has provided for our beloved sloop, a look back at its earliest days helps to provide some context as we look forward toward Clearwater's future.

Many people associate the beginning of Clearwater with the 1969 launch of the sloop and the famous maiden voyage that summer; but 2016, (not 2019) marks our organization's fiftieth anniversary. It was in June, 1966 that a group of Hudson Valley residents banded together to form an organization with a mission of bringing traditional Hudson River sloops back from the past.

The three year period from that meeting at the Saunders family home in Garrison until the sloop was launched in May, 1969 are some of the most fascinating time Clearwater has ever experienced. We are still familiar with many of the traditions that began in those formative years. In that short stretch, the idea of building a full-size Hudson River sloop grew from being "a pipe dream," as Pete Seeger first described it in a letter to his friend Vic Schwarz, into an organization with thousands of members, a brand new boat (at a cost of $180,000), and a mission to help the people of the Hudson Valley "learn to love their river again."

The big accomplishment started out very small. No Hudson River sloops were still afloat, and there were no boat building plans to be found. Consequently, the architectural drawings for the sloop needed to be made from scratch, and would have to be based on century-old photos, paintings, and written descriptions. In addition to historical accuracy, the boat needed to be Coast Guard-approved for safety, especially if it was to carry passengers. Pete found an eager supporter in naval architect Cyrus Hamlin, who used his skills and creativity to produce a workable design.

After giving a small advance to Hamlin, Pete and others set out to form the organization that would raise the money for the project. At the Saunders house party a Board of Directors was appointed, $167.07 was collected in a banjo, and the group voted to officially form Hudson River Sloop Restoration, Inc. (it was renamed Hudson River Sloop Clearwater in the 1970's).

Fundraising house parties weren't the only lasting Clearwater tradition to come out of those early days.

An annual festival was started in 1966 called the Hudson Valley Folk Picnic, which eventually grew into the Great Hudson River Revival.

The festival was run by a team of volunteers; much like the Revival is today. Other unique traditions that still remain from the organization's early years are:

potlucks, song circles, the annual meeting, stone soup, riverfront festivals, sloop clubs, singing crews, and volunteer crew on board the sloop.

After two years of constant fundraising efforts, the organization selected a builder. Harvey Gamage of South Bristol, Maine had built well over 200 wooden ships over more than four decades by the time he was approached to bid on the Clearwater.

Once the keel was laid in 1968, the pace of fundraising reached an all-out sprint. Members of the organization who cared about the mission gave generously. Sizeable gifts from organizations and companies like Boscobel Restoration, the Lila Acheson Wallace Fund and IBM were key donors. Significant savings were made possible through the generosity of Cy Hamlin, the Gamage yard, sailmakers Torrey, Huntington, and Shaw, and many others who contributed goods or work in-kind to help the project. Dozens of concerts given by professional musicians (who doubled-up as volunteer sailors) along the maiden voyage route helped put the organization over its final total and on its way to decades of service on the Hudson.

Today, with a comprehensive restoration nearing completion, Clearwater prepares for decades of sailing to come. But it continues to need the generosity of all of its members to succeed. We have done it before, so we know it is possible to do it again. Please join us in affirming the commitment of Clearwater's founding members to support the sloop and its mission to continue to educate, engage and inspire the next generation of environmental leaders.

A Thank You to Teachers

By Dave Conover, Education Director

For a teacher, or for anyone else trying to organize a group trip for students, the list of obstacles can be daunting. Can I get approval from administration? Are there funds available? What about buses, permission slips, and chaperones? How can I work this into the curriculum? Can we afford losing test prep time? What if it rains? Is this worth the effort?

It takes a lot of effort, especially during these days of standardized testing and the Common Core, to break the barrier of the classroom and bring kids outside. Those who overcome the obstacles, discover that the impact lasts far beyond the time spent onboard. There is ample evidence to support these very important facts: Field experiences are memorable, powerful, and they enhance and extend learning in the classroom.

A Clearwater trip can add value to almost any discipline taught in school. Using the Hudson as a case study, students can investigate concepts ranging from the ecological (diversity, productivity, invasive species) to the historical (West Point, Native Americans, Dutch), as well as geology (Palisades, Hudson Highlands), physics (simple machines), and math (navigation). Students on the Clearwater can explore writing and art (Hudson River School) as well as music (song is always a part of the Clearwater experience). It's a great way to engage multiple learning styles. And with Clearwater's onboard sensor, HRECOS, students can track the boat, upload and graph real-time water quality data, and compare it to sites up and down the Hudson. Clearwater has the capacity to reach thousands of students each year, from Albany to New York City, with programs on the Hudson and activities in the classroom.

So, for all those teachers, administrators, PTA leaders, and counselors who have sailed with us in the past, and to all those who we hope will join us in the future, thank you so much for recognizing the value of bringing your kids out of the classroom to experience the Hudson first-hand. Thanks for going through all the hoops to help enrich your students. Let us know how we can help make your task easier.

"An environment-based education movement – at all levels of education – will help students realize that school isn't supposed to be a polite form of incarceration, but a portal to the wider world."

Clearwater's Environmental Activism to Protect the Hudson

By Manna Jo Greene, Environmental Director

For Clearwater's Environmental Action projects and initiatives, it has been a busy and productive year – but one that leaves us with major challenges ahead.

Our efforts have included working to get General Electric to complete a comprehensive cleanup of the PCBs it discharged into the Hudson and working to protect the Hudson from the dangers of Indian Point and the proposed Algonquin Pipeline. At last year's Great Hudson River Revival, we focused our advocacy on issues relating to the impending impact of climate change on the Hudson Watershed. All three issues are still very much at the forefront of our concerns and in the focus of our attention.

Because of our concerns about the potentially disastrous consequences on the Hudson of water-supply contamination from fracking, we also joined the voices speaking out successfully in favor of a New York State ban on fracking. We were pleased that a ban of fracking in New York State was finally instituted during the year.

Clearwater's Environmental Action/Green Cities Initiative has also been working on a local level with many river communities, joining and supporting them, for example, in the prevention of the Rockland County desalination plant and in trying to limit industrial expansion along the Coeyman's Creek. We have been working on Environmental Justice for the past eight years, including implementing Federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and NYS Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) watershed protection and Environmental Justice (EJ) grants in Poughkeepsie, Beacon, Newburgh, Peekskill and Kingston. These initiatives – the Peekskill Community-Based Environmental Justice Inventory and Urban Watershed Report, a Climate Justice project in four river cities, a DEC EJ grant in Newburgh to promote community watershed awareness and build a fitness trail along the Quassaick Creek, and an Urban Forestry grant in Beacon – are all featured on the Clearwater website under our Green Cities Initiatives.

One significant project worthy of highlighting was an initiative under the Fallkill Urban Waters grant entitled Engaging the Community in Watershed Stewardship and Green Infrastructure is an innovative model that has the potential inspire a regional green jobs pipeline initiative. For the past several years, as part of our Green Cities Initiative, Clearwater has been working with Nubian Directions and their AmeriCorps YouthBuild high school equivalency students to create a template of a Green Jobs pipeline in Poughkeepsie. This pipeline includes teaching the theory behind watershed awareness and green stormwater infrastructure, hands-on construction experience, community engagement via design consultations with neighborhood homes and businesses, and now an apprenticeship program to be paid for by on-the-job-training funds that will lead to employment in real green jobs.

Clearwater and Partners Call for Comprehensive Cleanup of Hudson River PCBs

By Manna Jo Greene, Environmental Action Director

Over the past year, more than 70 municipalities have responded to a call by the Campaign for a Cleaner Hudson (CCH) by passing Municipal Resolutions seeking a mutually-beneficial, voluntary agreement between General Electric, the NRD Trustees and the NYS Canal Corporation to address ~136 additional acres of PCB contamination and to ensure navigational dredging and comprehensive testing and remediation of floodplains and backwaters, including the Old Champlain Canal.

Unfortunately, because Governor Cuomo is courting GE to move their headquarters to New York State, his office has not been helping to ensure a comprehensive cleanup. Editorials in The New York Times, Poughkeepsie Journal and Times Union all agreed that GE must do a more comprehensive cleanup. Unfortunately, EPA has not heeded the public's unified call for the robust remediation the Hudson River deserves.

The Campaign for a Cleaner Hudson, a partnership between Clearwater, Scenic Hudson and the Natural Resource Defense Council, may now need to resort to legal action and are investigating our options to do so. CCH has also reached out to the Trustees and to EPA. We are now calling for an immediate Five-Year Review of the effectiveness of the cleanup in meeting Superfund goals for this project. We are also checking to see if there are any grounds to reopen the 2002 Record of Decision.

Here are some highlights from the past year:

- Revised modeling indicates that the recovery of PCB levels in Upper Hudson River sediment and in Lower Hudson fish is slower than originally predicted. A more rigorous cleanup would improve this outcome.
- GE has been using a skewed fish sampling protocol that has resulted in a 16 – 75% underestimation of the levels of PCBs in fish sampled.
- In August, the Natural Resource Damage Trustees issued an Injury Determination re: Hudson River Groundwater Resources, which found PCBs and VOCs in groundwater at the Hudson Falls and Ft. Edward plant sites to be in excess of water quality standards, as well as PCB exceedances at the Village of Stillwater well field.
- Premature Decommissioning: In August we also learned that EPA was allowing GE to dismantle parts of the dewatering facility prematurely – prior to allowing public input on a required Decommissioning Plan. CCH urged EPA them to make GE cease and desist this “demobilization” – at least until they had the benefit of public input. Unfortunately, EPA has now approved the Decommissioning Plan for the Hudson River PCB remediation and the dewatering facility is being cleaned and taken apart, making our collective call for a comprehensive cleanup very unlikely.

What does all this mean for New York's iconic river? Unless we can find a legal way out, the recovery of the Hudson River will be considerably delayed, and people – especially subsistence fisherman and their families – will be eating PCB-contaminated fish far longer than is necessary. The NYS Canal Corporation will spend more than $10 million building a smaller dewatering facility at the Ft. Edward site, which our bridge and highway tolls will pay for; they will use trucks rather than rail to transport the material to hazardous waste landfills, and it will take decades longer to restore full navigational use of the Champlain Canal.

HUDSON RIVER DREDGING FACTS:

- Volume removed: 2.76 million cubic yards – more than originally anticipated (2.65 million)
- 450,000 cubic yards of sediment dredged from the navigation channel
- In 2015, 231,000 cubic yards were removed in 22 weeks of dredging (similar to previous years)
- Mass of PCBs removed: 141,000 Kg (310,000 lbs) – twice the mass anticipated.
- Area Dredged: 500 acres of river bottom
- Total Rail Transport: 29,918 rail cars loaded onto 343 trains
- Material shipped to hazardous waste and other double-lined landfills: 3.2 million tons
- In 2015, 16 trainloads met Toxic Substance Control Act (TSCA) standards of >50 ppm and 9 trainloads of Non-TSCA sediment and other dredge material were sent to landfills

Restoration Update

By Annika Savio, Captain

As we expose parts of the sloop that have not touched air in many years, I've been thinking a lot lately about the vessel's rebuild in 1976. It's enlightening to read issues of this very publication (its title since shortened from The North River Navigator) from forty years ago. I think Clearwater members might be interested in the similarities and differences between the work done in 1976 and the current restoration project.

What are the reasons for the work? According to an article in the September 1975 Navigator titled "Constant Maintenance - Boat Slated for October Repairs," the boat committee "met Aug. 4 and decided that the sloop should go to Maine in October for [a] major maintenance overhaul through the winter." The reason was that severe rot had been found in several areas (notably the stem, transom, and centerboard trunk) of the barely six-year-old sloop. Since that rebuild was completed, the sloop has been sailing every spring to fall (with at least one salt water deckwash every day), and has been meticulously maintained every winter. However, as the 1975 "Constant Maintenance" article stated, "the problem of rot is one that attacks every wooden boat." Over time, the rot inevitably returns. In 2015, we again shortened the fall sailing season in order to make ready for a "major maintenance overhaul." The current project targets the midships section of the hull, including the frames and planks beneath the waterline, and the centerboard trunk, some of which is original wood from 1969, some from the 1976 rebuild, and some that has been replaced in the years since. In fifty years, at least some of the work we're doing now will probably need to be redone, but for now we can have confidence in the scope and quality of the work, and will rebuild what we've torn out, and expect to be sailing again by early June 2016.

Who is doing the work?

In 1976, shipwrights from Billings Marine, in Stonington, Maine, replaced the stem, transom, centerboard trunk, quarterdeck, and much of the after hull planking. Meanwhile Clearwater crew and volunteers cleaned and oiled the vessel's 15 tons of iron bilge weights, rebuilt the yawl boat, and completed a list of annual maintenance items. This winter, the sloop gets to stay home on the Hudson (the Rondout Creek, if you want to be technical), and have professional shipwrights from the new Riverport Wooden Boat School, in Kingston, as well as shipwrights trained and hired by Clearwater, replace the centerboard trunk, trunk bedlogs, keelson section, and midships hull frames and planking, assisted by the sloop crew and volunteers. We have so far hosted three public volunteer days; it took two full days to move those same iron bilge weights ashore to expose the pieces to be replaced. The crew are excited to help with the restoration project, and are also tackling an ambitious list of other projects.

In a letter to the Navigator in March 1976, Debbie Suran, a volunteer onboard for the rebuild wrote "I think most of us [Clearwater members] don't realize what condition the boat is in and how much time, labor and money are needed to bring her back." In 2016, this sentiment again rings painfully true. I encourage everyone reading this to come to a potluck in Kingston this winter; enjoy the company of fellow Clearwater supporters, see the work that's going on, and support the people's boat in whatever way you can, so she can get out on the river again in 2016, and continue her mission of connecting people to the river. We can't do it without your help.

WHERE WE WORK

Clearwater Open Boat Events!

As a part of Clearwater tradition we will be hosting a series of Winter Open Boat Events in Kingston, NY. Open Boats provide an opportunity to meet the captains and crew, enjoy local music, and visit the iconic sloop Clearwater as she winters at the Home Port. Crew members lead tours of the sloop as she undergoes the restoration of her hull. Open Boats are family friendly, community events. Children will have the opportunity to create arts and crafts. Guests are asked to bring a potluck dish to share!

Join us on the following dates:

- Sat. March 19, 2016 from 4:00 to 8:00 PM
- Sat. April 23, 2016 from 4:00 to 8:00 PM

Admission is always free.
Donations are welcome.

Open Boats takes place at the Kingston home port beside the Hudson River Maritime Museum at 50 Rondout Landing, Kingston, NY.

Are you ready to roll up your sleeves?

Volunteers are welcome to work alongside the shipwrights and crew during this winter's restoration of sloop Clearwater.

We are looking for volunteers to help with annual maintenance work such as sanding, painting, inspecting and servicing all parts of the vessel. No prior experience is necessary and we welcome individual volunteers and groups. You can register to volunteer by emailing Volcoord@clearwater.org. Bring your work gloves!

The restoration is taking place at the Kingston Home Port at the Hudson River Maritime Museum (50 Rondout Landing, Kingston, NY).

Scheduled Volunteer Maintenance Days:

- Sunday, February 28th
- Saturday, March 26th
- Saturday, April 16th
- May, TBA

Volunteers are also accepted during the workweek. Contact Volcoord@clearwater.org to let us know when you can help.

Dear Friends,

We are saddened to announce that Clearwater will not be holding its Great Hudson River Revival this year. As you may have heard, the sloop is undergoing its largest restoration ever. It is a restoration that costs $5,000 a day and will run until at least June 2016. We must take this time to focus our effort on making sure the boat can sail again this year. The sloop Clearwater is the foundation of our organization, the vessel that brings people to the Hudson River and an inspiration to all who love her. Our work to protect the Hudson River is still our primary mission.

While we will not be having a Revival this year, we will be holding a number of smaller fundraising concerts and events up and down the River throughout the year. Stay tuned and please join us!

If it were not for our members, volunteers, vendors, artists, and many supporters, there would not be a Clearwater. We appreciate your unwavering support as we navigate this difficult time. We ask you to stay with us so that we can Float the Boat and come back stronger next year with a celebration truly worthy of 50 years and an incredible Great Hudson River Revival in 2017.

Help Us Float the Boat!

Each fall, with uncanny regularity, the Clearwater sailing season comes to an end and the winter crew's work begins. However, this year's haul out is unprecedented, as Clearwater is currently undergoing the largest, most expensive ($850,000) and complicated overhaul in her storied history. This third and final phase of a five-year hull restoration project involves replacement of the entire center portion of the sloop below the water line. Construction is scheduled to be completed by the end of May.

Clearwater is emblematic of the modern environmental movement. The importance of her presence on the Hudson cannot be overstated. While many other historic replicas can no longer afford to keep sailing, we're determined to keep Clearwater on the Hudson in perpetuity. We have secured $425,000 from New York State and are working on other major sources of funding. However, it's going to take each person who has ever experienced her majesty and enjoyed a cleaner Hudson River to keep this impossible dream alive.

For more information, or to make a contribution, please contact our development team at (845) 265-8080 or visit www.clearwater.org.

Cycle through the Five Boros with 'Team Clearwater'

The Five Boro Bike Tour is one of the biggest communal bike rides in the world: riding 40 miles through New York City including stretches through Central Park, on FDR drive, and over the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge. It is exciting and exhausting and above all inspiring to see so many human-powered vehicles taking to the streets.

Registration for the tour has closed, but if you're already a registered cyclist, you can join in to raise funds for your favorite Hudson River sloop by selecting 'Team Clearwater' from the drop down menu on the bike.nyc page.

Team Clearwater cyclists have already raised over $1500 through Kickstarter.

Create your own team today!

Some quick math for your sponsors...

$0.50/mile = $20
$1/mile = $40
$2/mile = $80
$5/mile = $200
